DETAILED ACTIONContinued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on June 18, 2004 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-3, 6-11, 14-17, 19 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,464,718 to Miller et al.

Miller discloses a balloon having a flexible wall, proximal and distal cones (FIGS. 5-7), proximal and distal ends adapted for being mounted to a catheter, an intermediate body configured to receive a stent (22) thereon, said stent having a proximal end and a distal end, at least one circumferential groove formed on the balloon wall between one of the proximal end and the distal end of the stent (Column 5 line 37-Column 6 line 11) and the respective proximal and distal cone for mechanically disengaging the respective cone from the intermediate body allowing each to move differently in a radial direction (Column 4 lines 31-46) wherein said at least one circumferential groove is present when the balloon is in an inflated and a deflated state. Miller also discloses creating dams by inflating the proximal and distal cones and thus retaining the stent on the balloon (Column 4 lines 41-46). Miller also discloses that the groove is formed before the stent is mounted on the balloon (Column 6 lines 37-47).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 4, 5, 12, 13 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miller et al. '718 in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,254,608 to Solar.

Miller discloses the claimed invention except for the flexible material comprising a foamed material. Solar teaches that a foamed material is used for bonding the stent to the catheter to allow the stent to become embedded in the balloon in order to protect the anatomical passageways during delivery of the stent and prevent the stent from slipping without the use of a protective sheath (Column 3 line 44 – Column 4 line 2 and Column 5 lines 20-24). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the balloon catheter of Miller with the foamed material of Solar in order to protect the anatomical passageways during stent delivery and prevent the stent from slipping off the balloon without the use of a protective sheath.
